

Forever Young & Hip

In my life, I've never really been what I would identify as "hip," and that's perfectly okay. But at 36, it's occurred to me, rather suddenly, that I'm not all that young anymore. To regain my youth, this month I've planned an itinerary of all that is young and hip in the Hub, curated especially for you whippersnappers come to town for college or post-college globetrotting. For you, I've done research, sent out Tweets and talked extensively to friends and colleagues who are, in fact, both young and hip. What follows are three spots that I've been assured you'll enjoy. For more, click on through to our website, where I talk about lounging on the Lawn on D, open mic nights at Tasty Burger, cocktails at Back Bay Harry's and other things guaranteed to show you a young-hip-good time.

For my full Boston itinerary, go to where traveler. com.

