39 For the best blowout, make sure hair is 100% dry

It sounds simple, but it's the key to a lasting look. You have to take every last bit of moisture out of your hair before you go outside—even a touch of dampness can cause hair to frizz or curl up quickly, says Nick Penna Jr., owner of Boston's SalonCapri. It's well worth the extra five or ten minutes it may take.

40 Camouflage thinning hair with special fibers

Sprinkle in hairlike thickening fibers wherever you want to fake a fuller look—at your temples, crown or an extra-wide part, says Flowers. They're natural-looking, supereasy to apply and stay put until your next shampoo. Plus, they come in different colors.

Set hair in rollers to minimize heat damage “To give my strands a break from curling and flatirons, I’ve started doing an old-school wash-and-set instead. It does take extra time, but my hair looks so much healthier!”

—HOLLY CARTER, beauty director

WACKY, BUT IT WORKS!

42 Get rid of brassiness with ketchup

The red helps fix green tones caused by chlorine and minerals from water, says Robinson. Apply it to dry hair in the shower and leave on for five minutes before rinsing.

43 Avoid metal brushes, especially on color-treated locks

When blow-drying, go for a brush that has natural bristles and a wooden or ceramic barrel, says celeb colorist Kyle White. Metal ones heat up and act like an iron, which can cause breakage and dullness.

APPLY PRODUCTS TO CURLY LOCKS WITH PAPER TOWELS

Terry towels can break up curls, while paper ones help hold your curl pattern together, says Ron King, celeb stylist and owner of Ron King Salon in Austin, Texas. Put your fave curl-enhancing formula (gel, cream or mousse) onto one, flip your head over and scrunch it into hair, says King.
