Burrito Rolling, Beer for Pong, and Ragging on Your Bones

Get Practicing: Anna's "Spoon Ninja" Burrito-Rolling Competition

Prove to random strangers that all those years watching the guy at Anna's make your burrito wasn't for naught by throwing down in this epic cage match (NOTE: not really in a cage) in which a select number of customers get a dream shot behind the line, speed-rolling their fave Mexican meal in an effort to win a gift card, t-shirt, and the famed "Golden Spoon" trophy, so you know the Super Steaks (no beans) are high.

Throw And Drink: Pong Beer

Ensure your next beer pong tourney is up to regulation by ditching those old cases of Icehouse you found in your stepdad's garage, and snagging a Rack Pack of officially sanctioned (presumably by someone, somewhere) Pong Beer, a cleverly marketed, CT-based lite sud brewed "crisp, smooth, and refreshing". So good, ironically, you'll never send 'em back.

New Threads: Rag & Bone Opens On Newbury

No longer just how you take advantage of insecure girls, Rag & Bone's just planted their fashion-forward flag down in Back Bay, peddling must-haves like the wool Turndown Fedora, brown leather RB Sneaker, and a full repertoire of shirts, ties, and denim in the overhauled multi-level former Pierre Deux, now rocking a men's floor accented by exposed brick, vintage scales/ books/ shoeorns, and racks built from copper pipe.
