SPOTLIGHT ON

MEGHAN MARKLE

We took the actress out of the boardroom (she plays whip-smart paralegal Rachel Zane on Suits, back July 13 on USA for its sixth season) to chat about her love of snail mail, work-wardrobe essentials and her lifestyle website, The Tig.

#GIRLBOSS

I see The Tig (thetig.com) as a conversation between girlfriends. I love connecting with the fan base and sharing my experiences. There's so much snarky stuff on the Internet these days, so I've tried to create a space that's really positive and hopefully inspires you to do something that's uplifting and empowering.

THE MODERN POWER SUIT

My wardrobe for Suits isn't like Working Girl—dressing for work doesn't have to be so on-the-nose these days. The key is to have your own point of view attached to it. Personally, I love cropped pants in vegan leather, a great fitted blazer and a button-down.

TAKE NOTE

I used to be a calligrapher for weddings and events—that was my side job while I was auditioning. I think handwritten notes are a lost art form. When I booked my first pilot, my dad wrote me a letter that I still have. The idea of someone taking the time to put pen to paper is really special.

DINNER-PARTY SECRET

There is nothing as delicious (or as impressive) as a perfectly roasted chicken. If you have an Ina Garten-level roasted-chicken recipe, it's a game changer. I bring that to dinner parties and make a lot of friends. —Sarah Walter

DRESS FAKEOUT

Opt for matching separates instead of a dress—you'll get more bang for your buck with pieces that are just as gorgeous apart as together. Savvy shopping for the win!

Top, $108, and skirt, $148, Eliza J, nordstrom.com. Earrings, $65, stellaandbow.com (enter for a chance to win a pair* at bit.ly/1XnJEJQ). Ring, $30, wrenglory.com.

GLOSSY HAIR

Smooth flyaways and frizz and boost shine by squeezing a dime-size dollop of leave-in hair cream onto fingertips, rubbing together, then gliding over hair.

Lust Oribe Supershine Light Moisturizing Cream, $49, oribe.com. Must Pantene Pro-V Style Series BB Crème, $6.
