Many hotels in Boston are pet-friendly, so it's a dog-eat-dog world courting pet owners—yes, pun intended. The Envoy (which charges a $100 sanitation fee) has a competitive advantage, however: its location in the city's buzzy Seaport District. After a stroll along the picturesque Harborwalk, enjoy lunch at one of the many pet-friendly restaurants, and explore downtown Boston's Greenway, a popular place to hang out in the summertime.
