BOSTON — Join 100 of Boston's top chefs as they come together in a show of strength and solidarity to raise $1 million for The One Fund.

Spearheaded by celeb chefs Ken Oringer and Ming Tsai, the Boston Red Sox, Gov. Deval Patrick, Mayor Thomas Menino, and ARAMARK, Boston Bites Back (BBB) will be a once-in-a-lifetime tasting event at Fenway Park bringing Bostonians together to eat, drink and demonstrate Boston's unrelenting spirit, while raising money for the victims of the Boston

"BBB is an opportunity for the city to join as one and acknowledge our strength as a community," said Oringer, owner of Clio, Toro, Coppa & Uni. "Nothing speaks more to our collective resolve than an evening of hospitality, unity and hometown pride in one of the most iconic venues in Boston -- Fenway Park."

"Food is our common ground, a universal experience," said Tsai, owner of Blue Ginger & Blue Dragon. "This event is an occasion for Bostonians to reconnect over food, mingle with chefs and honor our city's inspiring resilience. It's an opportunity for Bostonians to literally 'bite' back."

Held Wednesday, May 15, 2013 from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. at Fenway Park, chefs will be cooking and serving guests from behind concession stands as well as at tables throughout the Big Concourse and the Budweiser deck.

Only 5,000 general access tickets will be sold at $200 each. There will also be 200 VIP tickets at $1,000 each, allowing additional access to an intimate and exclusive gathering in Fenway's EMC Club.

An online auction leading up to the event will feature many one-of-a-kind packages including unique dining experiences from Oringer & Tsai, personal shopping with fashion expert Gretta Monahan, and hometown sports venues.
