FOOD

SUPER PERU

RUKA marinates its wonderful fusion menu in essence of sci-fi

THE FUTURE OF cross-cultural dining was supposed to feel like Downtown's RUKA, especially if you're a fan of 1982 sci-fi movie, "Blade Runner" and its neo-Asian fusion of color, flavor and fugitive androids. RUKA loses the robots but gives its core Peruvian-Japanese "Nikkei" menu the perfect 'future-now' setting. A lattice of neon-bright ropes decorates a ceiling held up by carved Chinese dragon pillars, set against seductive wall art depicting the last moments of a rather unfortunate goldfish. Highlights of the lunch menu include the fiery Nantucket Bay scallop ceviche, Lima-style fried calamari (check out the bonito flake garnish: it moves!) and the Jesuit cocktail, which combines the best elements of drinking while smoking a pipe, to surreal and pleasantly tingling effect. If Harrison Ford were to burst in and demand proof of our humanity, we would not blink an eye. 505 Washington St., 617.266.0102.

Three great women to follow for May flavor

Anna's Taqueria

Standout Bostonian portal to the soul of Mexican street food—let's call it BosMex—starring super-fresh ingredients and skilled burrito rollers.

by Chloe

The fast-casual vegan hit born in New York has breezed into Seaport in a blaze of animal-free clam chowder, lobster rolls and pesto meatballs.

Yvonne's

Settled comfortably in the iconic Locke-Ober space, Yvonne's puts a supper club slant on sharable plates and outrageous large format cocktails. Make ours a Moscow Mule.
